Water Rates

Since the market opened up in April 2017, only 13% of businesses have reviewed their water bills* and taken advantage of better rates and making potential savings of up to 20% (source Ofwat) Business water is supplied by wholesalers – those companies responsible for the national water pipes, mains and treatment works. They sell water and wastewater services to the retail suppliers (of which England has 20 and Wales has 15). This is a competitive market with good and bad performers. Our job and expertise is to find the right retailer for you.

We adopt a three Stage process:

1. Review and analyse your current bills and assess the detail – water, wastewater, surface water, fixed charges and trade effluence.

2. Benchmark your costs against the retail market and present savings to you.

3. Determine what efficiencies can be gained from targeted site visits, reporting of opportunities and savings and then implement them. We have made several thousands of pounds savings in the following markets:

Garden centres – Billing, usage, bore hole efficiency, consumption monitoring and rating assessments.

Manufacturing – Procurement, billing audits, trade effluence management and capacity management.
Care homes – Group consolidation, billing efficiencies and rating assessment.

Hospitality / Retail – Tendering process to drive savings averaging over 20% on retail costs alongside efficiency gains from toilets, taps and wastewater.
